POLICY ON FEDERAL HERITAGE BUILDINGS

In a press release dated October 16, 1982 and released from the Heritage Canada Annual General Meeting in Regina, Mr. Denis Ethier, Parliamentary Secretary to the Honourable John Roberts, Minister of the Environment, announced a new federal Policy designed to ensure the conservation of heritage buildings owned by the Government of Canada.

Mr. Ethier said the new federal heritage buildings policy is "a clear commitment by the Government of Canada to renovation, restoration and recycling of important heritage buildings".

The policy establishes a Federal Heritage Buildings Review Office, which will make recommendations to the NCC concerning buildings in the National Capital Region and to the Minister of the Environment concerning buildings in other parts of the country.

All federally-owned buildings 40 years old or older will be subject to evaluation. Those with the highest heritage significance will be officially designated as either a classified or a recognized federal heritage building. Special procedures must be followed whenever repair, demolition or ownership change is planned.

The policy recognizes local, regional and provincial attitudes and allows for public input and independent assessment whenever there is disagreement.

Mr. Ethier said "Heritage Buildings are important historical resources for all Canadians. This policy makes the conservation and protection of federally-owned heritage buildings a government objective".

THE ABERDEEN PAVILION LOOKS FORWARD TO NEW LIFE

The Minto Skating Club is formally announcing its proposal for the renovation and use of the Aberdeen Pavilion ("Cattle Castle") so the building may have its heritage value restored while serving as a base for the club and other community groups, all of whom cannot be adequately accommodated in city arenas.

The two-phase rehabilitation, proposed to start January 1983, and be completed by August 30, 1984, is projected to cost $7.3 million. A portion of the financing for the $5 million first phase is being sought from the City of Ottawa; the remainder would be covered by Minto Skating Club fund-raising and by provincial and federal grants.

The Minto Skating Club, itself a historical institution which began as a group skating on the rink at Government House in 1903, recognizes the glaring lack of space for the activities of various recreational and community groups in Ottawa. As for its own skaters, they have not had their own home arena since 1959, and have subsequently been renting ice from six city rinks whenever and wherever they can. As its membership has been growing, the Club has been finding this situation increasingly difficult and costly.

Upon completion of a feasibility study by Hamilton, Kemp Architects of Ottawa and Toronto and after several discussions with all levels of government, businessmen, interest and community groups, the Club has found the renovation project to be very worthwhile and with bountiful support.

The proposed renovations - designed to be functional, not fancy - would be made in two phases. The first phase would involve restoring the Pavilion's outer shell to its original state, according to Heritage Building Code standards and the construction of two 256' x 85' ice rinks with the necessary facilities such as changerooms, lockers, and washrooms.

The second phase of the project would include most of the interior work such as partitioning and painting.

A third phase, to be supported entirely by the Minto Skating Club, would include all the finishing touches such as interior decorating, landscaping, furniture and plaques.

Once renovated, the Aberdeen Pavilion will have many uses: Minto Skating Club instruction programs, Ottawa Speedskaters' programs, the Central Canada Exhibition, the Ottawa Winter Fair, Old Timers' Hockey programs, family skating, instruction for day-care groups, senior citizens' skating, Glebe grade schools skating, moms and tots skating, programs for the mentally and physically handicapped, and competitions.

"CONTINUITY WITH CHANGE"

"Planning for the Conservation of Ontario's Man-Made Heritage" is the subtitle of the book entitled "Continuity with Change", containing seven essays on heritage conservation, photographs, charts, maps, illustrations, and diagrams.

The book deals with general policy, protection of landscape and buildings in regional planning, incorporation of historic and archeological sites in provincial parks, protecting townscapes in urban planning and renewal, and retention and use of industrial monuments.

The main theme centres around the idea that traces of man's history on the land are essential to and irreplaceable in the life of any place, rather than isolated relics, unrepresentative of all but a narrow and elitist version of history. Case studies show how historic structures can and do fit into changing land use patterns along the Rideau and Trent-Severn Waterways, and at Gold Rock, Dundas, Niagara Falls, Sandbanks Park and Newmarket.

The book is available for $10.00 from Publications Services, Ministry of Government Services, 5th Floor, 880 Bay St., Toronto, Ontario M7A 1N8.

THE ARCHIVIST

"The Widening Sphere: Women in Canada, 1870-1940" is the title of a new exhibit at the Public Archives which opened September 28 and will close January 4, 1983.

The exhibition follows the life cycle of the average woman born around 1870, from childhood and adolescence to her entry into adult life around the year 1890. From this date the Archives portrays the public and private lives of the generation of women who fought to gain the vote and who lived to witness the declaration of women as Legally Persons in 1929, when Judge Emily Murphy and her associates were able to prove that women are eligible for appointment to the Canadian Senate.

The planners of the exhibition strive to present a mosaic of the life experiences of women of all classes and of the different ethnic identities that make up Canada.

Their selection includes an extract from the journal of a widowed mother taking her children out west on a wagon train to start a new life on the Prairies, a plea from a pioneer woman journalist for equal opportunities for women workers, and photographs by Topley of "Polly", an habitual denizen of the Carleton County Jail, and of Lady Aberdeen, founder of the National Council of Women of Canada.

Information taken from "The Archivist", Public Archives Canada, September - October 1982.

Heritage Ottawa is extremely proud to announce that President Diane Holmes was elected as Alderwoman for City of Ottawa's Wellington Ward, November 8th.

Well done Diane -- Congratulations and GO GET 'EM!!
